

Seafox 1 set to work in East Irish Sea

EOG Resources United Kingdom, a subsidiary of EOG Resources, Inc., has signed a contract with Seafox Contractors for the use of accommodation and multi-support jack-up Seafox 1 at the Conwy field in the East Irish Sea.

Seafox Contractors will provide EOG with one of her jack-ups to assist with piling works and the hook-up and commissioning of an offshore structure at the Conwy field.

Besides the installation works, Seafox 1 will be re-positioned to the Douglas platform to perform accommodation and crane services. "We are very pleased to work on EOG's first oil project in the East Irish Sea and we are confident to deliver a successful project to EOG Resources," says Keesjan Cordia, Managing Director of Seafox Contractors BV.

Seafox Contractors BV is part of the Seafox Group which is an owner of offshore accommodation and multi-support service jack-ups across the world. The Group services a global range of customers but its primary focus is on the Southern North Sea in Europe. All operational activities are outsourced to Workfox BV, also situated in Hoofddorp, the Netherlands.
